The extent to which thought shapes the inner fabric
Of the mind creates conditions of a nature which allow
For deeper exploration of thought; whatever springs from
The depths of imagination comprised of a characteristic
Which encapsulates one's efforts to translate vivid works
Of the mind's eye into forms which are familiar to everyday Experience; the extent to which ideas form the basis of Inner transformation reflected in a variety of expression
Embodied by an infinite array of forms each attempting to Convey the nuance of what it is to be human: to speak directly
To the heart through a variety of means, seeking to broaden
The consciousness of individuals to animate sleeping minds
Into a state of wakefulness; with the hope of planting seeds
With an intention to awaken the dormant potential which Resides within the sleeping mind, awaiting some form of Activation to shake the years of weariness from memory
So one's true nature has an opportunity to experience
All that is genuine and worth the struggle to preserve.